BLOOMORA

AI BRAND IDENTITY KIT

A fictional, student-friendly sustainable self-care brand

FOREST SAGE	DEEP NAVY	WARM CREAM	SOFT CORAL
#A8C3A0	#19324A	#F7F3E8	#F28C7A

Prepared as a complete branding concept with strategy, logo direction, visual system, voice, sample applications, and an AI-assisted creation workflow.

1. Brand Overview

Brand name: Bloomora

Category: Affordable sustainable self-care and everyday wellness products.

Brand idea: Small, mindful choices that help people feel good while being kinder to the planet.

Tagline: “Grow Good, Every Day.”

Fictional status: Bloomora is an invented brand created for this project. Product ideas and claims are illustrative, not real commercial offers.

The brand offers refillable personal-care bottles, reusable daily essentials, gentle self-care kits, and simple habit cards. Its design should feel fresh, calm, approachable, and modern—not overly clinical or luxury-priced.

Brand purpose

Make sustainable self-care easier to start and easier to maintain, especially for students and young adults.

Mission

Create practical, attractive, budget-conscious everyday products that encourage mindful routines and reduce avoidable single-use packaging.

Vision

Become a familiar, trusted starter brand for people building healthier routines and more thoughtful consumption habits.

Core values

• Simplicity — products and messaging are easy to understand.
• Care — respect for people, budgets, and the environment.
• Honesty — no exaggerated sustainability or wellness claims.
• Optimism — progress over perfection.
• Accessibility — welcoming design and practical price points.

2. Target Audience

Primary audience: Students and young adults aged approximately 18–28 who want simple self-care routines and are interested in sustainable choices but are price-conscious.

Secondary audience: First-job professionals, gift buyers, and people starting to replace disposable daily items.

Audience needs

• Products that fit a student budget.
• Easy-to-follow routines rather than complicated wellness advice.
• Attractive packaging suitable for a desk, hostel room, gym bag, or travel bag.
• Clear information about materials, care, and reuse.

Positioning statement

For students and young adults who want everyday self-care without unnecessary waste, Bloomora is an approachable lifestyle brand offering simple reusable essentials and gentle routines at accessible prices. Unlike intimidating wellness brands, Bloomora makes small positive habits feel realistic and enjoyable.

3. Logo & Visual Identity

Logo concept

Use a simple sprout emerging from a rounded circle or a two-leaf icon paired with the word “bloomora” in a friendly rounded sans-serif typeface. The sprout represents growth; the circle represents daily routines and continuity. Keep the mark readable at small sizes.

Suggested logo lock-up

Note: This is a typographic concept mock-up, not a final vector logo. A designer can convert the chosen direction into a polished scalable mark.

Colour palette

Colour	HEX	Role
Forest Sage	#A8C3A0	Primary natural accent; calm, growth, sustainability
Deep Navy	#19324A	Primary text; confidence and readability
Warm Cream	#F7F3E8	Background; warmth and breathing room
Soft Coral	#F28C7A	Small highlights; friendliness and energy

Typography

Headings: Poppins SemiBold or Nunito ExtraBold for a friendly, rounded look.
Body text: Inter or Open Sans for clear reading on mobile and print.
Usage: Use no more than two font families. Avoid overly decorative fonts for essential information.

Graphic elements

Use rounded rectangles, simple leaf shapes, soft organic curves, and generous whitespace. Photography should use natural daylight, real-life desks and bags, reusable materials, and diverse young adults. Avoid clutter, excessive gradients, and unverified eco-certification symbols.

4. Brand Voice & Messaging

Personality

Warm • optimistic • practical • honest • quietly playful.

Voice principles

Encouraging: Celebrate small steps instead of demanding perfection.
Clear: Explain what a product does in plain language.
Grounded: Make only claims the brand can support.
Inclusive: Avoid guilt, shame, or assumptions about lifestyle and income.

Message pillars

1. Small habits matter — simple routines can feel achievable.
2. Reuse made easy — products are designed for repeated everyday use.
3. Care within reach — thoughtful choices should not feel exclusive.

Sample copy

Instagram bio: Little rituals. Lighter footprints. ■ Everyday self-care for growing lives. #GrowGoodEveryDay

Product description: “Meet your new everyday companion. The Bloomora Refill Bottle is designed for repeat use, easy cleaning, and a calmer daily routine. Check the care instructions before your first refill.”

Launch post: “Big change can start small. Meet Bloomora: practical self-care essentials designed to make everyday routines feel a little brighter. Start with one good habit. ■”

Call to action: “Start your small-good routine.”

Words to use / avoid

Use: mindful, refill, everyday, small steps, practical, thoughtfully designed.
Avoid: 100% eco-friendly, zero impact, guaranteed wellness results, guilt-based language, or any certification claim without evidence.

5. Product & Packaging Direction

Starter product range

Product	Role in range	Visual direction
Refill Bottle	Reusable daily hydration or personal-care bottle, sage	One bottle shape, simple icon, navy type
Pocket Ritual Kit	Compact pouch with habit cards and reusable essentials	Cream pouch, simple icons
Daily Habit Cards	A small set of prompts for building consistent routines	Cream cards, navy type, sage borders

Packaging rules

• Prioritise reusable or recyclable materials where feasible and verify local recycling guidance.
• Keep the front label simple: brand, product name, one clear benefit.
• Put instructions, material details, and care guidance on the back.
• Do not use “compostable,” “plastic-free,” or “carbon neutral” unless substantiated.

6. Brand Applications

Social media tile

Visual: warm cream background, sage leaf icon, navy headline, coral highlight on one short phrase.
Headline: “One small habit. A brighter everyday.”
Footer: Bloomora | Grow Good, Every Day.

Website hero section

Headline: “Make room for little good things.”
Supporting text: “Thoughtful everyday essentials and simple self-care rituals, made to fit real life.”
Button: “Explore the essentials”

Packaging front label

BLOOMORA
Refill Bottle
Designed for everyday reuse
Care instructions inside

Email / campus campaign

Subject: A fresh start, one small habit at a time
Body: “Busy schedule? Start simple. Choose one everyday habit that works for you, keep it visible, and build from there. Bloomora is here to make your routine feel easier—not perfect.”

7. AI-Assisted Creation Workflow

AI tools can help brainstorm names, explore moodboards, draft copy, and create mock-up concepts. Human review is essential for originality, legibility, accessibility, and factual claims.

Example prompts

Brand strategy: “Develop a brand identity for Bloomora, a fictional affordable sustainable self-care brand for students and young adults. Define audience, purpose, mission, values, positioning, and a concise tagline. Avoid unsupported environmental claims.”

Logo exploration: “Create three minimal logo directions for Bloomora using a sprout or two-leaf motif, rounded sans-serif typography, forest sage, deep navy, warm cream, and soft coral. Ensure legibility at small sizes. Do not imitate existing brands.”

Social media: “Write five short Instagram captions for Bloomora in a warm, practical, optimistic voice. Emphasise small habits and reuse; avoid guilt and unverified claims.”

Packaging mock-up: “Create a clean front-label mock-up for a fictional Bloomora refill bottle using cream, sage, and navy. Include the brand name, product name, and ‘Designed for everyday reuse’. Keep text readable and do not add fake certifications.”

Quality-control checklist

- ■ Brand name and tagline are consistent across assets.
- ■ Colours and typography follow the visual system.
- ■ Text is readable on mobile and print.
- ■ No unsupported sustainability or health claims.
- ■ Check for similar existing names/logos before real-world launch.
- ■ Confirm product materials, safety, and recycling instructions before publication.

8. Summary & Deliverables

Bloomora’s identity is built around approachable sustainability, simple self-care, and positive everyday habits. Its sage, navy, cream, and coral palette creates a calm but lively look; the sprout-inspired logo direction reinforces growth without relying on complicated imagery.

Included in this kit

• Brand overview, purpose, mission, vision, and values
• Target audience and positioning
• Logo direction and colour palette with HEX codes
• Typography and graphic guidance
• Brand voice, messaging pillars, and sample copy
• Product and packaging direction
• Social, website, label, and campaign applications
• AI prompts and quality-control checklist

Suggested next steps

1. Create 2–3 logo variations in Canva or another design tool.
2. Apply the palette and typography to a social post and packaging mock-up.
3. Review legibility and contrast, especially for small text.
4. Search trademark and domain databases before using the name commercially.

Project note

This document is a complete fictional brand identity concept for educational use. It is not legal clearance, a trademark search, or evidence that product claims have been tested.

BLOOMORA

GROW GOOD, EVERY DAY.